Figure 1. Schematic diagram of the experimental setup. The subjects were seated in a dimly lit room and viewed the screen through a mirror. The screen displayed the target and the starting position of the hand. The hand was positioned at the starting position and the target was positioned at the target position. The hand was moved towards the target and the target was moved towards the hand. The hand and target were connected by a spring.
